Evidence-based Cohesion Policy: Territorial Dimensions

29-30 November 2011

Kraków, Poland

Venue

Jagiellonian University of Kraków

Auditorium Maximum

Address: ul. Krupnicza 33, 31-123 Kraków

Preliminary Programme

Version 7 October 2011

Purpose

This ESPON Internal Seminar shall contribute to the current policy development by:

- Engaging in a constructive exchange of views on issues of political interest related to a stronger territorial dimension in future policy, where ESPON can contribute with territorial fact and evidence:
- Conducting a stimulating discussion on current project results and progress, highlighting the added value of using the facts and evidence provided for place-based policy making: and
- Increasing the involvement of actors and networking, creating synergetic linkages between the projects, and finding options to improve processing, dissemination and communication of ESPON results to policy-makers ranging from local/regional level to pan-European level.

The seminar will be held on 29-30 November 2011 in Kraków, Poland, It is organised in cooperation with the Polish Presidency of the European Union within the framework of the ESPON 2013 Programme.

Context and Flow

ESPON, the European Observation Network for Territorial Development and Cohesion, strives to support policy development with facts and evidence covering the entire European territory, its regions and cities.

Interest at a European level in evidence-based and result-oriented policy delivery is high. This demand is for an integrated, place-based approach to development and a territorial dimension in policy development. This is in order to fulfil the high-level objective of territorial cohesion and harmonious development of the European territory.

The ESPON Internal Seminar 2011 will therefore try to fulfil a double ambition.

On the first day, the internal ESPON seminar will take its starting point from the debate around future Cohesion Policy and the Territorial Agenda 2020. Key note speeches from the Polish EU Presidency and the European Commission will give the most up to date policy considerations related to European policy with a territorial dimension. Following this plenary session, a number of key policy issues and demands will be addressed in a second session aiming at answers on the possible contribution and use of ESPON results in support of a territorial dimension in policy making.

On the second day, the internal ESPON seminar aims to stimulate proceedings through a debate of project results between policy makers in the ESPON Monitoring Committee, Stakeholders behind ESPON Targeted Analyses, the ESPON Contact Point Network and the partners of ESPON projects. In parallel workshops, a large number of ESPON projects will present their current progress. The feedback will ensure that policy-makers will get relevant and scientifically robust results from the programme. This will also be an opportunity to unleash synergies between the themes and projects.

In closing the seminar, the next steps of European policy development related to territorial cohesion as well as in the implementation of the ESPON 2013 Programme will be tabled. A particular plenary dialogue will be stimulated on the future of ESPON post 2013.

Target audience

The seminar is targeting members of the ESPON Monitoring Committee, stakeholders participating in Targeted Analyses, Lead and Project Partners as well as the ESPON Contact Points. A maximum of 200 participants can be welcomed at the venue.

We look forward to meeting you in Kraków on 29-30 November 2011!
